Genealogy, like the proverbial woman's work, is never done, as we were recently forcefully reminded when we looked back at the History of the Kennedy Family that, with the aid of Montford J. Anderson (p. 28), we published in the late 1950's. Now, after some thirty years, new research as well as the births, deaths, and marriages that the years inevitably bring suggest that a revision is in order. In preparing it, we have taken into account the results of this research and have secured updated family records from as many Kennedy descendants as possible. For instance, the research of Helen Truscott (p. 18) in early New Jersey records has clarified the picture of the original John, and Bruce Kennedy (p. 5) has added substantially to our knowledge of the Andrew Kennedy (p. 2) line.

Until recently, what we knew of the life and adventures of the John Kennedy who migrated to Sussex County, New Jersey, somewhat before 1750 was derived from three related documents: (1) the "Kennedy Family History" (reproduced here as Appendix I and hereafter referred to as KFH), (2) W. H. Darling's (p. 41) letter to Cecelia Botting, and (3) her correspondence with Gurney Smith (p. 38). Of these sources, Gurney Smith depended somewhat on the KFH though he was chiefly concerned with the later Canadian Kennedys and the Sloughs (p. 33). W. H. Darling's account is in large part very obviously based on the KFH, as it contains direct quotations. To this, he added material derived from printed sources — for example, from accounts of the Kennedy clan and the early Scottish Kennedys and from Francis Parkman's writings on the French and Indian Wars — but adds little or nothing to our knowledge of the early Kennedys in America; in fact, he may even have confused the story somewhat, as he placed the capture of John Kennedy by the French at Fort Oswego rather than at Fort Schlosser. So until now we have had to depend almost wholly on the KFH for our knowledge of the first American John Kennedy and his family.

Unfortunately, that is a less than satisfactory source; one is unsure how far it may be trusted. It appears to have been compiled in Canada in the late nineteenth or early twentieth century; thus the author could have known directly little of what happened to the family in New Jersey. Likewise, he appears to have relied largely on family tradition; there is no evidence of the use of written records. So, like most such accounts of a family's early history, it is probably made up of a certain amount of accurate information passed down from one generation to the next, pieced out by details supplied by the narrators when their memories played them false. And, under the circumstances, there is always the temptation to make a good story better. In addition, the KFH is sometimes demonstrably wrong: John Kennedy could not have been in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company in New Jersey, for the company never operated there. Thus, previously, even our best source had to be used with caution.

Recently, however, the situation has improved. The research of Helen Truscott in early New Jersey records has established that John Kennedy was in New Jersey, that he was a man of some property, that he had a wife named Elizabeth, and that they had a son William. This all supports the KFH. She also learned the maiden name of the first wife of John Jr. In addition, a list of the burials at St. Anns has revealed the fact that the first John is buried in Canada rather than New Jersey, and the International Genealogical Index has expanded our knowledge of the Georgetown Kennedys. Thus, some of the basic statements of the KFH have been proved true and the earlier rather shadowy John Kennedy has taken on sharper outlines.

So, as well as we could, we have expanded our original publication; we hope that our work will be of use and interest to the Kennedys of the 1980's. It is also our hope that some of them will carry the story of the family on into the twenty-first century.

I. John Kennedy (1731 - 1817)

His stone in the St. Ann's cemetery gives the dates shown above. The KFH (Appendix I) tells something of his life. According to it, he was b. in Scotland and, in a time of religious turmoil, was taken by his parents to Ireland. Sometime before 1750, he came to America and was employed by the Hudson Bay Company; his headquarters was near Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, N. J. In the summer of 1754, he helped in the erection of the famous Log Gaol, near Johnsonburg, Warren Co., N. J. (The KFH mistakenly assigns this activity to his son John; but, if any John Kennedy had a hand in this project, it must have been this John, as the son was not born until 1761.) He saw service during the French and Indian Wars; in August 1756, he was taken prisoner at Fort Schlosser, a few miles from Niagara Falls. Thence, he was taken to Kingston, Montreal, and then Quebec, whence, by prison ship, to Paris; by an exchange of prisoners, he finally arrived in London, where he married. With his wife, he returned to New Jersey and again entered the service of the Hudson Bay Company. Based as it obviously is largely on family tradition, this account combines facts and fancy: at no time was the Hudson Bay Company established in New Jersey; yet John Kennedy was a resident there, and it is easy to believe that he took part in the French and Indian Wars. It is impossible to say where fact ends and fancy begins.

New Jersey official records provide some reliable data concerning his career; they show that, in 1789 and 1790, he mortgaged land near Newton, Sussex Co. and that in 1795, he and his wife Elizabeth deeded land to William Kennedy. It would seem that he was then an established citizen of some standing in his community. Obviously, as he is bd. at St. Ann's, he later migrated to Lincoln Co., Ont.

m. Elizabeth

A. John Kennedy (8 May 1761[1762?] - 12 April 1847)

He was b. near Newton, Sussex Co., N. J., and, at the time of the Revolution, was preparing himself as a teacher. During that war, he served the British in a clerical capacity; his name is among the first on the list of United Empire Loyalists at the museum at Niagara-on-the-Lake. After the war, he returned to teaching. By 1794, because of his wartime activities and his strong British sympathies, he decided to settle in Canada. The KFH describes what must have been an extremely difficult journey. They settled on a farm near St. Ann's, Gainsboro Twp., Lincoln Co., (Lot 19, Conc. V). Later, perhaps at the time of his second marriage, he moved to a farm near Middleport (Lot 27, Conc. VI), about half way between St. Ann's and Smithville. It is said that he helped to secure the land about a mile south of Smithville on which a log school was built in 1834; he taught in it, and it was long known as the Kennedy School. He lived on the Middleport farm until his death; the birth and death dates given are taken from his stone at St. Ann's. He was twice m.; issue: 15.

m(1) Charity WURTZ (1768[1761?] - 30 April 1800), dau. of John Wurtz, on 9 April 1786. In 1794, a John Wurts, of Morris Co., N. J., died leaving an estate of nearly 1800 pounds and naming Sarah Wurts, probably his widow, as one of the executors. Charity is bd. at St. Ann's.
1. John Kennedy (4 March 1787 - 18 April 1874)
   He was b. in N. J. In Aug 1812, he fought as a Pvt. in the War of 1812. When, in March 1819, he petitioned for a grant of land, he described himself as a carpenter. He was an elder in the local Presbyterian church for over 50 years. Census: (1851, 1861) Gainsboro Twp., Lincoln Co., Ont. Issue: 11.
   m. Barbara Dean (16[18?] June 1791 - 27[16?] June 1861), dau. of John and Margaret (Flach) Dean. She was b. at Fox Hill, N. J.; her family emigrated to Gainsboro Twp. in 1801. She and John are bd. at St. Anns.

a. Joel Kennedy (15 Dec 1816 - 23 July 1902)
   As the eldest son, he was given first chance at education — with the understanding that he would pass on what he learned to his younger brothers and sisters; this he used to do after he had lined them up along the edge of a haymow. Later he went to the U. S. and trained for the ministry at Hudson College in Ohio. In his father's will, it was provided that he should receive 20 pounds "over and above what he has already received from me!" it was to be paid by John Kennedy four years after the father's death. Joel was in Kansas in 1865 and in Marion, (Ohio?) in 1889, still preaching.

(6) Mary Jemima Kennedy (14 Nov 1865 – 1 Nov 1958)
From a newspaper clipping: "On Monday last a child about 3 years old, daughter of Mr. John Kennedy, of the Township of Gainsborough, while out playing, wandered away from home. The parents, soon missing the child, made diligent search for it till late in the day, but could find no trace of its whereabouts. They then alarmed the neighbors, who turned out, en masse, and searched the surrounding fields and woods during the night, without finding the little one. A heavy rain falling during the early part of the evening, and the night being cold, it was feared that the child would not survive the exposure. The search was resumed in the morning, when the child was found in an exhausted condition, in a neighboring woods, and was restored to its sorrowing and distressed parents. By the application of proper restoratives it revived, and is now in a fair way of recovery." While lost, Mary Jemima had seen her uncle Sam Kennedy tending sheep but did not call him, as she thought him always rather cross. She had taken shelter during the night among some sheep and had thus been kept somewhat warm.

She studied music in Hamilton; there she worked in a music store, playing sheet music at the request of customers; for this, she was paid little. Then she was called home to help with the work, and later sent to St. Catharines to learn tailoring so that she might make clothes for the six younger children to wear to school. There she and nine other women had to work in a small room with no ventilation. Her uncle John Comfort took her for walks at night to try to help her retain her health. Finally, after she developed a bad bronchial infection, he insisted that she go home. By that time she had learned to make clothing for her younger brothers and sisters. Frank Comfort, son of her uncle Andrew, was studying medicine and he persuaded her to train as a nurse at Buffalo (N. Y.) General Hospital. Her sister Julia had lent her money, either for her uniforms or her training in music; with her first earnings, she repaid Julia. This was the first money Julia had saved in all the years she had been helping to educate her brothers and sisters. She was twice m.; issue: 2.

4. Charles Kennedy (13 March 1792 - 17[12?] June 1854)

When the house in which he lived his later life was moved to the Cedar Crest Golf Links and presented to the Canadian Women's Historical Society of Toronto, J. A. Willoughby, a former mayor of Georgetown, Esquerring Twp., Halton Co., said: "Charles Kennedy, builder of the old house, was born in Sussex County, New Jersey, on March 13, 1792, and came to the Niagara Peninsula with his parents on June 8, 1796, and the same year moved to a farm below St. Anns. Kennedy served in the War of 1812 with the Canadian forces. [At one time, he held the rank of ensign; in August 1812, he was a sergeant. He fought in the Battle of Beaver Dam.] In 1821, he came to Georgetown and settled on a farm where he lived for the rest of his life. . . . Prior to farming, Charles Kennedy was a civil engineer and magistrate, and the village in those days was known as Hungry Hollow. In 1837, it was rechristened Georgetown, in honour of the pioneer George Kennedy, a younger brother of Charles, who settled on the land which now forms the Corporation of Georgetown." In 1813, Charles was a member of the Beamsville Bapt. Ch. In March 1819, when he petitioned for land, Charles had a family and described himself as a "clothier", i.e. as somehow involved in the wool industry. He and Elizabeth are bd. in Greenwood Cem.

5. Rev. Morris Kennedy (4 Nov 1794 - 12 Oct 1886)

The story of his being kidnapped by an Indian is told in the KFH. He served in the 4th Lincoln Co. Regt. in the War of 1812; in both Aug 1812 and May 1813, he was listed as a pvt. In the KFH, it is stated that he "was in the Battle of Queenston Heights, where he was one of the guards over General Wadsworth and other American prisoners." In March 1819, he, then a farmer, petitioned for a land grant.

m. Sarah Jane TRAVIS (6 April 1795 - ), dau. of Caleb and Susan (Merritt) Travis. She and Morris are bd. in Greenwood Cem., Georgetown.

a. Kelop Kennedy
6. Samuel Kennedy

The KFH lists a Samuel among the sons of John. As that account was compiled around 1900 and as we know nothing of its sources, its unsupported statements are open to question. We have found no trace of such a Samuel. There is evidence that Samuel Kennedy (12 May 1797 – 7 March 1879), who lived on Lot 22, Conc. V, Gainsboro Twp., and who was a Pvt. in the 4th Lincoln Co. Regt. in the War of 1812, was not a son of John, but rather of the line of the Rev Samuel Kennedy of New Jersey, who may very well have been a close relative of the John Kennedy with whom we are concerned. Helen Truscott called attention to the following note concerning one of the fourteen children of Samuel Kennedy, Jr., who lived near Johnsonburg, N.J.: "Samuel Kennedy, the third, who was baptised by his grandfather, Rev Samuel Kennedy. Samuel, the third, married; he soon died and left a son Samuel, the fourth. This Samuel, accompanied by his mother, removed to Ontario, Canada; he there married and died an old man leaving a son and three daughters." Elsewhere, Helen Truscott found record of the mother's marriage to a Glover and of their living in Grimsby, Lincoln Co. Samuel, the fourth, married Hannah STULL, dau. of Latham and Ann Catherine (Hatt) Stull.

7. George Kennedy (16 Sept 1799 – 28 Jan 1870)

He was b. in Canada. He was a surveyor, and settled (c1820) in Esquesing Twp., Halton Co., where in 1823 he bought some 200 A. of land. Additional facts have been quoted in the section devoted to his older brother Charles. He and Elizabeth are bd. in Greenwood Cem. Census: (1861) Georgetown, Halton Co. For possible issue, see Appendix III.

B. William Kennedy
   Of John's son William, the KFH states that "nothing can be learned."
   It seems probable that he remained in New Jersey, and was thus unknown to later Canadian Kennedys. It appears that he was noted in three N. J. records: (1) as the William Kennedy to whom John and his wife deeded certain lands in Greenwich Twp., Gloucester Co., N. J., on 1 Aug 1795, (2) as the William named in the will of Robert Stewart "the Elder" under the date of 10 Jan 1809, as the husband of his dau. Sarah STEWART, and (3) as the guardian of Robert, Thomas, and William Kennedy Stewart, all heirs of the of the above Robert Stewart, in an inventory dated 27 Feb 1810.

   the late Elliott Taylor. In 1824, Charles li. on Lot 12, Conc. V, Erin Twp.,

D. Richard Kennedy
   The story of his death is told in the KFH. From the fact that he had no part in the 1819 petition for land, it may be suspected that he d. before that date.
(Our copy of the Kennedy Family History was given us by Jacob Kennedy (p. 43; slight changes have been made in spelling, capitalization, etc. to make for clarity and easier reading.)

Kennedy is a name that, in Scotland represented a clan, and as far as can be traced, is of the Protestant faith.

In heraldic symbols, their crest was surmounted with the human arm bearing in the hand an oaken branch with an acorn on it. Substantial in their faith, they were appropriately represented by this giant of the forest. Their kilt was red and green.

John Kennedy was born in Scotland. His parents, being Presbyterian by faith, in time of religious persecution, fled with him to the north of Ireland. When grown to manhood, he came to America and was employed or connected with the Hudson Bay Fur Trading Company, in New Jersey. In the time of the French and Indian Wars with Great Britain, he was taken prisoner at what was then called Fort Schlosser, one and a fourth miles above Niagara Falls, when he lost all effects he had and was carried a prisoner to Quebec, and thence to Paris, France, [and] by an exchange of prisoners to London, England.

In London, he married an English lady, and subsequently came to New Jersey and entered the fur trading company again. He had four sons: John, William, Charles, and Richard. Of William, nothing can be learned. Charles was a carpenter and joiner, and lived many years in St. Anns, Canada, near his brother John. He was a genius in wood carving and made, in connection with his nephew John Kennedy, the case for the celebrated grandfathers clock, which stood so many years and is still standing in the house on the old farm at Middleport. [In 1930, the clock was in the possession of Jacob Kennedy.] This clock and an apple tree, called the well-pole apple tree because it stood near a well, are still objects of great interest to the children and grandchildren who did and still visit the place. Richard was a blacksmith, had also located in Canada, had purchased a house and made himself a tomahawk, and was about to start through the wilderness country for his family in New Jersey when another man proposed to make the journey with him. This man was afterwards convicted and executed for the murder of another man, at which time he confessed that, when fording the Tonawanda River, he sat on a horse behind Richard Kennedy, whose tomahawk he held in his hand; that, having given Richard a crushing blow, he threw him into the river; and that his lifeless body floated away. This information was learned from newspapers and is corroborated by Richard's never having been heard of after this time.

John Kennedy was born May 8, 1761, in Sussex Co., N. J., and was pursuing his studies for a professional life, when the War of the Revolution broke out and prevented the continuance of his vocation. He was old enough to have served in the army but being small of stature passed unnoticed and afterwards was excused by giving free of charge his services in a clerical capacity to the government. He was a good penman and was able to write in a legible hand the Lord's Prayer in the compass of an English shilling. When grown and married, he became a school-teacher.

At length, on account of his loyalty to the English government, he started with his wife and five children, with a team of horses, for Canada. On his way his horses died, and he turned to his old business of teaching school for a while. His main force was in establishing discipline. He had a number of large boys who heretofore had ruled the school; and learning of a plot to close the door against him, he secreted himself in the loft, and, when they were waiting with the door bolted, he came down upon them suddenly with a birch rod with which he estab­lished authority. The good people of the place offered him a house and a home if he would become a resident there. Eventually, he started by boat or skiff by some river route until he reached Oswego, N. Y., and thence by Lake Ontario to Niagara, June 8, 1796.

While at Oswego, he met some Indians. His youngest child, Morris, was but an infant, and, on account of his large dark eyes and black hair, he was greatly admired by them, and was stolen by one of the squaws and carried away before her treachery was discovered. A resolute man gave successful chase, however, and finally rescued the child.

From Niagara, John went to a farm below St. Anns and settled there in 1796. There he remained a short time. Then he went to Middleport, and there he lived until his death April 12 1847. His remains were interred in the Presbyterian burying ground connected with the church a short distance below St. Anns. On a white marble slab is the following inscription: "In memory of John Kennedy, Sr., who was born in the state of New Jersey, came to this province June 8, 1796 with a wife and five children. Died April 12, 1847 aged 85 years, 11 months, and 4 days."

He was twice married and had two large families of children, to all of whom he gave a good common-school education, then settled them on farms of at least two hundred acres each. Two of his eldest sons, John and Charles, were volunteers in the War of 1812 with the United States. Charles took part in the Battle of Beaver Dam; and Morris was in the Battle of Queenston Heights, where he was one of the guards over General Wadsworth and other American prisoners at that celebrated battle.

John Kennedy was particularly anxious for the welfare of his family and frequently admonished his grandchildren to aim high in life, assuring them his ancestors were more than well-to-do, intelligent, and respectable people. Among incidents of his younger life was his presence and assistance at the erection of a log jail in Sussex County, N. J., where he was born. [This account closes with a list of the children of John Kennedy, Sr., and a list of their dates of birth.]
